

Take a few moments to breathe before you begin the Interview Prep Questions. These questions will get you in the mindset to show that new manager exactly what you are made of....

Which is Pure. Gold!

1. Why do you really want this job? Break it down. Knowing WHY you want this job will help you respond to any type of 'future-esk' questions the employer may ask.
2. Who is the company? Use your google search skills and really dig down into who this company is, what are their core values. Check out their social media for a better picture of their personality.
3. Find out who you are actually interviewing with (this is a fair question). Take the list of interviewers and find out as much as you can about them (Thank you, LinkedIn). You will feel more confident knowing the people on the other side of the table.
4. Now, find out who you are. Have your elevator pitch of yourself ready and waiting. "Tell me about yourself" is surely going to be a platform to shine and start the interview off in the right direction. Be. Prepared.
5. Last, Fake it till you make it- dress like you already have the job. Lay out your outfit the night before, iron (yes- that old thing in the closet) if needed and show up professional. When in doubt on interview fashion, less is more.
